THE CBCA MODEL

City-Business Climate Alliance

What

THE CITY-BUSINESS CLIMATE ALLIANCE (CBCA) IS A GLOBAL TWO-TIER NETWORK OF CITIES AND BUSINESSES DESIGNED TO CREATE SYSTEMIC CHANGE THROUGH DATA-DRIVEN, JOINT CLIMATE ACTION.

Why

The CBCA will help cities implement their Climate Action Plans through working with business:

- A large portion of cities' emissions is controlled by the private sector.
- There is unprecedented alignment between City mayors and business climate action commitments.

How

From 2020, the CBCA will work with a first cohort of cities to:

- Implement a blueprint to break down barriers to local city-business collaboration.
- Connect local partnerships to a global network comprising climate-engaged global businesses.

LOCAL CITY-BUSINESS PARTNERSHIPS

Guiding principles

Within the CBCA model, local city-business partnerships:

- Are non-commercial spaces
- Link to city climate action plans and city priorities
- Improve the lives of citizens, driving inclusive climate action
- Are based on transparency and data
- Follow a pragmatic and flexible CBCA model
- Need to accelerate action by rapidly building a pipeline of projects and creating markets
- Must have or develop a long-term financing plan
- Must contribute to the CBCA network
