POLICY RESEARCH

Brighter Green's series of case studies and short documentary videos offer extended analyses of the challenges faced by Brazil, China, Ethiopia, India, and other countries of Southeast Asia, as they work to address climate change while industrializing animal agriculture and feed production. Two discussion papers illuminate the public health and environmental hazards created by the rapid adoption of Western-style diets in Africa, Asia, and Latin America and explore the "triangle of factory farming" linking the world's three biggest players in the meat and feed industries.
