Friday, December 5, 2008

Room Grebe 3: 11:00 – 12:30

Forest carbon activities developed over the past 15 years provide a range of insights useful to the development of national-level REDD programs. This event will explore various approaches to national-level REDD frameworks, each of which draw on lessons from large-scale project development. Presenters and panelists will focus on creating national-level readiness for: carbon accounting, strategy development, payment mechanisms, and project governance.

Food + beverages will be provided.
