Climate Smart Agriculture: way forward for Food Security in a changing climate

Alexandre Meybeck Vincent Gitz FAO

Side event to UNFCCC Bonn June 10th 2011

A triple Challenge

 More food, in quantity, quality and diversity, everywhere for everyone

Adapt to Climate Change

 Contribute to mitigate Climate Change

Two ways to adapt

Getting more resilient to variability

 Getting prepared to long term changes

Two ways to mitigate

 Reduce emissions per kg of output (decorrelate production growth and emissions growth)

 Enhance agricultural soil carbons sinks

Rain water harvesting

Zaï pits

Nutrient management

Conservation Agriculture

Ghana

Genetic resources Lima: International Potato Center

Relationship between greenhouse gas emissions and output per cow

Biodigestors

Cambodia

Resilience in livestock systems

Crop-Livestock Systems

Grassland & rangeland management

Agroforestry

Reduce food losses

Manage risks

- monitoring
- vulnerability assessment
- identification of (ex-ante) damage reduction measures
- early action
- Reparation of losses to productive assets

Enabling farmers to change

Main points

- Food Security
- Importance of adaptation of agriculture
- Necessary increase of production to be taken into account in NAMAs
- NAMAs to include carbon sinks (Ag)
- Specificity of agriculture, small holders, to be taken into account in financial mechanism

FAO's submissions

Link Food Security & Climate Change in international Fora

 CFS has requested a study to HLPE on Food Security & Climate Change

 Climate negotiations have to include Food Security concerns
