

Sexual and Reproductive Health and Rights, Gender and Climate Change Resilience

Description:

The Programme of Action of the International Conference on Population and Development (ICPD) recognized the strong links between population, sustainable development and environment, and the centrality of sexual and reproductive health and rights to individual well-being and empowerment as well as collective sustainability. Through universal access to sexual and reproductive health and rights, climate-resilient health systems, better data on vulnerability and improved emergency preparedness and response, the Programme of Action of the International Conference on Population and Development advances climate resilience.
